

Richard A. Russo, the Chairman of Rosenn Jenkins & Greenwald's personal injury practice, recently attended the American Association for Justice (AAJ) 2017 Convention in Boston. Each year, AAJ Conventions bring together thousands of America's leading attorneys who handle traumatic injury cases for their clients. The annual conference spans several days and provides unique opportunities for accomplished lawyers to meet with other lawyers and experts from across the country and discuss new developments and ideas to better represent their injury clients. The conference also provides lawyers with numerous continuing legal education programs covering a wide array of topics that are important to their area of practice.
